Tips and Tricks:

How to lock the pen color on the 800 Series SMART Board

Typically on an 800 series SMART board, the size of the object touching the board will determine how the board behaves (this is called Touch Recognition). For example, when the pen touches the board you get ink, when your finger touches the board you can move an object, and when something larger (like the back of your hand) touches the board you can erase. Sometimes you may not want the board to recognize the size of the object, for example you may have a student who needs to use something larger, like a tennis ball, to write on the board. Locking the pen color on the 800 series board will override the touch recognition, and anything that touches the board will become the pen.

This is great for students who cannot grasp a pen.

1. Press and hold the button for the pen color that you would like. You should hold for about 2 seconds, until the light on the pen color blinks.
2. Now, any object touching the board will write in the pen color that has been locked.
3. To unlock the pen color, simply press back on the same color. The light will stop blinking, and the touch recognition will function as normal.
