CCS New England Donates Holiday Care Packages to U.S. Service Members
Marks Seventh Consecutive Year of Support

NASHUA, N.H. – (Jan. 16, 2012) – CCS New England, an audio visual systems integrator, supported U.S. Troops this holiday season for its seventh consecutive year.

CCS employees joined in the effort by bringing in needed items and packaging them for a U.S. Army Unit of paratroopers in Afghanistan. For most of the soldiers in this unit, this was the third and fourth Christmas spent away from home. The employees teamed up and assembled boxes filled with everything from snacks and toiletries to DVDs and socks.

“Our Military men and women constantly make sacrifices for us. It’s the least we can do to let them know we’re thinking of them and are thankful for everything they’ve done to preserve our way of life,” said Chris Gamst, vice president of CCS New England.

CCS identified the troop through www.anysoldier.com, a website updated daily that allows you to identify any member of the armed forces in harm’s way. From there, several search options are available to determine which troop you would like to support.

Earlier this year, CCS participated in a Jet Pull at the Boston-Portsmouth Air Show to raise money for the Wounded Warriors. Supporting U.S. service members is an ongoing initiative for CCS New England.
